Intraday Thoughts – MYR Neutral to Bearish

USD/MYR opened little changed at 4.1710 and has slipped below 4.17 as of writing ahead of today's Malaysia's exports data. We expect the pair to stay neutral to slightly bullish for the week ahead in anticipation of a sustained USD strength and domestic political uncertainties. Bullish momentum is picking up and USD/MYR looks set to head towards the upper Bollinger band of 4.1834 if it breaches the 4.18 handle.

1-Month Outlook – MYR bearish

We turn bullish on USD/MYR expecting USD strength to sustain at least until November's general election. Lacklustre recovery and especially slower job growth pose downside risk to this view, but this is outweighed by higher possibility for a USD reversal after months of weakness as well as rising volatility ahead of the election.

MYR Crosses

EUR/MYR

EUR/MYR Neutral

EUR/MYR opened little changed at 4.8522 and is expected to remain steady today, tracking the neutral move in EUR/USD ahead of President Lagarde's hearing at the European Parliament. No change to our bearish outlook in EUR in the more medium term over sustained USD strength; Recently higher cases in Europe also trigger renewed concerns of stricter social distancing rules which could hamper the already weak recovery especially in the services sector.

a	S2	S1	Indicative	R1	R2
EUR/MYR	4.8150	4.8300	4.8485	4.8773	4.8966

GBP/MYR

GBP/MYR Neutral

GBP/MYR opened little changed at 5.3232 as GBP continued to stabilize after recent losses. No change to our view that GBP is bearish in the short and more medium term on the back of Brexit uncertainties and poor recovery prospect. Chancellor Sunak's latest emergency job scheme (to replace current program after expiry in Oct) was also viewed as being less generous, a negative for GBP.

	S2	S1	Indicative	R1	R2
GBP/MYR	5.2632	5.3000	5.3214	5.3350	5.3677

AUD/MYR

AUD/MYR Neutral to bullish

AUD/MYR opened 0.4% lower at 2.9362 but is likely trade firmer amid stronger AUD/USD. This is in line with our current view that firmer risk sentiment could easily push AUD/USD back into bid tone. Nonetheless AUD is still susceptible to a sustained USD strength. In the more medium term, we view RBA's more optimistic recovery outlook as a factor holding up the Aussie dollar.

	S2	S1	Indicative	R1	R2
