Intraday Thoughts –Neutral-to-Slightly Bearish

USD/MYR opened 0.25% lower at 4.7825 and slid further to 4.7805 as of writing. Daily outlook is neutral-to-slightly bearish given USD weakness following the retreat in UST yields. Meanwhile, MYR appeared to have picked up steam in early morning trade although still lagging its peers. Overnight, BNM Governor Datuk Abdul Rasheed Ghaffour said that the central banks remained committed to ensure the Ringgit moves in an orderly manner and added that recent currency movements were heavily influenced by global events and do not reflect the country's fundamentals.

1-Month Outlook – USD/MYR Neutral-to-Slightly Bullish

The USD/MYR 1-month outlook is neutral-to-slightly bullish as the Fed dot plot points to one more 25bps Fed hike this year, while expectations for any rate cut are being pushed back to 2H2024. In fact, the latest Fed dot plot showed the median forecast for end-2023, 2024 and 2025 fed funds rate at 5.6%, 5.1% and 3.9% respectively (June: 5.6%, 4.6% and 3.4%). The 50bps upward revision for 2024 and 2025 was attributable to expectations for a more solid expansion in economic activities and continuous improvement in the labour market. On the domestic front, BNM dropped the "slightly accommodative" phrase in its latest MPC statement, highlighting that the prevailing OPR level is consistent with the current assessment of the inflation and growth outlook. This reaffirmed our view for an extended pause in the OPR at 3.00% for the rest of the year and will cap MYR strength.
