Intraday Thoughts - Neutral-to-Slightly Bearish

USD/MYR opened 0.04% lower at 4.0725 before paring some losses to 4.0605 at the point of writing. Daily outlook is neutral-to-slightly bearish with the overnight risk reversal prompting a pullback in the Dollar, and the Ringgit trading firmer against most G10 and regional currencies in early morning session. That said, market sentiment remains cautious amid continuous uncertainty on the geopolitical front and ahead of the US CPI release later in the week. As such, losses for the pair are expected to be capped at 4.0576 (S1) today.

1-Month Outlook - USD/MYR Neutral

We are neutral on this pair on expectations that investors will stay cautious, waiting for concrete developments on the geopolitical front. Meanwhile, the neutral outlook for the pair will also be supported by expectations that the FOMC will maintain rates at this level in the near term given that the economy is expanding at a still solid pace, while inflation remains elevated with the latest overrun largely underpinned by energy. In our opinion, persistence fear over inflation will likely keep the Dollar well supported amid a resilient labour market, but growth concerns could likely take centre stage later in the year in anticipation of squeezed corporate profits and consumer spending following the recent run-up in energy prices. On the domestic front, BNM maintained a neutral stance in its latest policy statement, while acknowledging increased risks from the Middle-east conflict. The neutral statement, coupled with BNM’s expectation for continued moderate growth (2026: 4.0-5.0%) and benign price outlook (2026: 1.5-2.5%), reinforced our view for an extended OPR pause this year.

USD/SGD

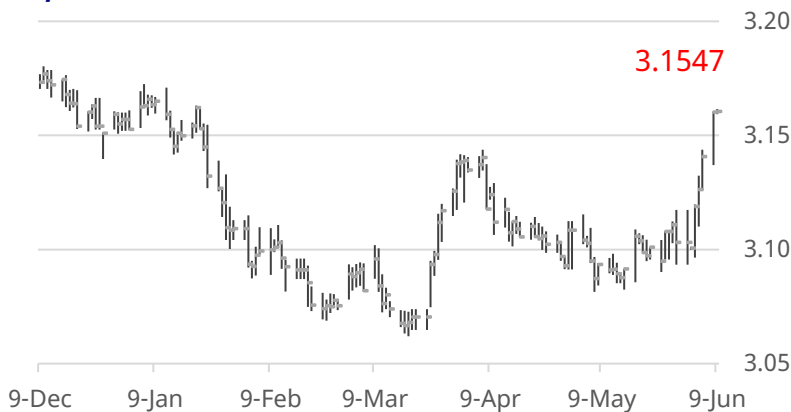

USD/SGD Neutral-to-Slightly Bearish

USD/SGD opened flat at 1.2883 before sliding to 1.2871 at the point of writing. Daily outlook is neutral-to-slightly bearish with SGD trading firmer against most G10, albeit at a marginal pace of less than +0.1%. Nothing on deck from Singapore, for the US, existing home sales and trade data are up next, but the pair will likely be sentiments driven instead of data-driven today.
